A part of the Glades history laid to rest

Tammy Jackson, Staff Reporter

Pahokee resident and Glades pioneer, Carmen "Pop" Salvatore, Sr. 98, died Friday, June 17, at his residence. Many people enjoyed listening to the history of Pahokee and much information about the Glades when Mr. Salvatore, known to many simply as "Pop," told of the experiences he encountered since he arrived in the states.

Mr. Salvatore was born in 1896 in Italy.

Mr. Salvatore and his wife Ella moved to Pahokee after he served in World War I. He remembered and told thousands of the hurricane that roared through Pahokee in 1928, and he was among the first persons to use the rich muck soil to plant bell peppers, eggplants and other vegetables.

Mr. Salvatore also served for many years on the Pahokee Housing Authority Board, school board and the city council, and the East Beach Drainage District. He was named Citizen of the Year in 1976. He was instrumental in borrowing the funds necessary to keep the school system operating during the Great Depression. While he was a member of the Pahokee City Council sewer systems were installed within the city. During his tenure on the Pahokee Housing Authority, Fremd Village was constructed. He was also a longtime member of the American Legion Post 90, a life member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and a life member of the Pahokee Elks Lodge.

Mr. Salvatore is survived by his wife, Ella; son, Milton Salvatore Sr. and daughter-in-law, Jean Salvatore of Ocala; daughters: Mary Paulette, Iris Hodges and Lucille Horton, all of Pahokee; brother, John Salvatore of Cleveland, Ohio; sisters: Sophia Palumbo and Rose Prignano, both of Union, N.J.; nine grandchildren; 15 great-grandchildren; and, one great-grandchild; and many nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his son, Carmen Salvatore Jr. in 1958. Funeral services were held Monday, June 20, 1994, at the First United Methodist Church, Pahokee. Rev. Ronald Jones officiated. Interment was held at Port Mayaca Cemetery.

Serving as pallbearers were: Woodie Salvatore, Carmen "Skeet" Salvatore, III, Ronald Hodges, Jack Paulette, Bryan Tucker, Carmen Salvatore IV, Adam Salvatore, Don Salvatore and Joseph Salvatore.

Funeral arrangements were under the direction of the James A. Bennett Funeral Home.

Rally and picketing for property rights planned for July 5

There will be a Citizens for Constitutional Property Rights rally and picketing in front of the West Palm Beach Courthouse, 301 North Olive Ave., West Palm Beach, on Tuesday, July 5, at 10 a.m.

"We are fighting the same fight as our founding fathers," said John Earley, member of Citizens for Constitutional Property Rights, Inc. (CCPR).

"If you are fed up with the county's and state's efforts to steal your property and livelihood away, then join us as we take our stand," said Mr. Earley.

Palm Beach County can take 25 percent of a person's land without compensation and the State of Florida's Department of Environmental Protection can render your property worthless without compensation, he added. "These and other abuses of government aren't just affecting a few, but rather, are affecting thousands of property owners in Palm Beach County," said Mr. Earley.

Fire destroys family's two-bedroom home in Lake Harbor

By Brenda Bunting, Editor

It took less than an hour for one family to lose everything they owned last week.

John and Jerry Courson got up and went to work as usual last Wednesday morning, June 15. When they returned to their home on Cypress Blvd. in Lake Harbor that evening, their two-bedroom home had burned to the ground.

"We lost everything," said wife Jerry Courson. "It was so strange to come home to nothing."

The Belle Glade Fire Department responded to the call at 5:51 p.m. When they arrived a few minutes after 6 p.m. the wood-framed house was fully involved.

Fire Chief Tony Tuliano said the loss was estimated at $40,000. The State Fire Marshal said the fire was accidental but could not determine how it started.

The Coursons had lived in the house for about a year-and-a-half and were in the process of buying the home. There was no fire insurance.

Mrs. Courson said their son, John, 14, was at Disney World when the fire occurred. No one was injured in the blaze.

The American Red Cross, West County Service Center, immediately stepped in and helped the family find lodging for a few nights until they could rent a house in Belle Glade.

They also gave the family food and clothing vouchers and funds to purchase a dining table and bedding.

Friends of the family have set up a fund at the Bank of Pahokee and are asking the community to help this family get back on their feet.

Mr. Courson works at Carter Electric and Mrs. Courson at Rite Aid in Belle Glade.

A benefit barbecue is planned for next Sunday, June 26, at the Belle Glade Marina beginning 12:30 p.m.

Tickets can be purchased at $40.00. The State Fire Marshal said the fire was accidental but could not determine how it started.

Mrs. Courson said she has been overwhelmed by the outpouring of help from the community.

"It's unbelievable. Everybody's been so nice...people I don't even know."

"I feel sorry for anybody who doesn't live in the Glades," she said.

District seeks public comment

Public comment is being invited as the South Florida Water Management District (SFWMD) begins the process of developing uniform rules on using rights of way along canals and levees regulated by the district.

Several public workshops have been planned to discuss possible revisions to the existing regulations. The district must be able to operate and maintain the canal system for flood control, water supply and environmental and water quality protection.

Specific issues for discussion include use of rights of way by adjacent property owners, availability of rights of way for linear park and greenways development, public utilities and governments; possible fees for using or occupying the rights of way and possible penalties for non-compliance with district regulations. Other issues may include specifying the type of trees and vegetation that may be planted on rights of way and public access to rights of way.

Workshops will be held:

- June 23 at 7 p.m. at the Okeechobee County Civic Center, 1750 U.S. Hwy. 98 North, Okeechobee and June 27 at 7 p.m. at the Osceola County Courthouse, Commission Chambers, 17 S. Vernon Ave., Kissimmee.

For questions or comments, call Jim Drosakis, Rules Analyst, 407-687-6275 or toll-free at 1-800-432-2045.

Agricultural Awareness Council elects new directors

By Brenda Bunting, Editor

Ask a child where tomatoes come from and they might answer "Winn Dixie." Tell an adult that Palm Beach County is the third largest county in the United States in farm products, and their face might register surprise.

A goal has been set by The Agricultural Awareness Council of Palm Beach County this year to continue to educate the public about Palm Beach County agriculture.

The council has been in existence for four years. It is comprised of small, medium and large farmers in the county, as well as "friends of agriculture" who are interested in telling the "good story" about agriculture.

The council has been busy over the past four years speaking to civic groups, the media and by making themselves visible at local fairs and events.

Incoming Director David Chick said, "We want to continue to promote the benefits of the agricultural community of Palm Beach County."

Mr. Chick, an attorney, also owns a farm where he grows sugar cane, rice and has a horticultural nursery. He joined the Ag Awareness Council in 1991. He attended Yale Law School and was raised in Clewiston before moving to the coast.

He said the council has developed a slide presentation about farming in the county and they hope to show it at clubs and organizations.

The presentation shows that Palm Beach County agriculture is currently valued in excess of $1 billion annually and generates an estimated labor payroll of more than $341 million per year.

While agriculture is using less land in Palm Beach County than it did in 1978, when 75 million acres were in farming production, more is being produced on the existing land.

Election of officers for the council was held June 16 at the Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative.

Out-going Director Chuck Walley was presented a clock for his work with the organization. He will continue to serve on the board of directors in the citrus division.

Other board members elected were: Joe Orsenigo, vegetables west; Bob Conrad, vegetables east; Rick Roth, sod; and Dana Thomas, consumer director.

Youth loses battle for life; mother lost battle in October

Six-year-old Jamel L. Harrell died Wednesday, June 15, 1994, after being hospitalized with injuries he received when he was hit by a Belle Glade City maintenance truck. Jamel had been hospitalized at St. Mary's Hospital, West Palm Beach, with severe head and leg injuries from the June 14 accident.

According to Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Archie McNair, Jamel, along with other children, was crossing Avenue E enroute to the Lake Shore Pool. The other children stopped in the middle of Avenue E, however Jamel ran into the traffic.

Highway Patrol reports indicate the driver of the truck, Charlie Josey, had no wrong doings in the accident. FHP said he will not be charged. Josey had been employed with the City of Belle Glade for six months.

Jamel and his sisters and brother had been living with their grandmother, Emily Harrell, because their mother, Teresa Harrell, had died due to an automobile accident.

According to reports, last October Harrell was riding in a car on State Road 880 when it hit a 10-foot alligator. The car flew 90 feet over a canal and a dirt road. She was hospitalized at St. Mary's Hospital and later died.

Men's group awards scholarship to male students

"Men in the Serious Side", a non-profit organization, recently awarded two scholarships to area high school students. A scholarship was awarded to a Glades Central Community High School student and a Pahokee Middle/Senior High School student. The scholarships were awarded to two young men who maintained exceptional standard and academic achievements.

Receiving a $250 scholarship from Glades Central was David McInnes. Harold Pringle of Pahokee Middle/Senior High also received a $250 scholarship.

The scholarships were made possible through fundraising efforts such as car washes and fish fries.

The group is planning another fish fry on June 24 in South Bay.

GFC offers bowhunting course

Have you wondered how the hunter fits in to modern-day conservation efforts? Are you concerned about how to handle a bow and arrow? These are just a few of the instructional areas covered in the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission's Bow Hunting Course. Students will also receive "hands-on" experience shooting a bow and arrow on the range. Students are encouraged to bring their own bowhunting equipment.

This course will satisfy the requirement for some other states that require a special bowhunting course before issuing licenses.

The next course in Palm Beach County is being offered at Gold Coast Archery on Belevard Road between Draxell and the Turnpike. It will meet on Saturday, June 25, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

For further information and pre-registration, contact the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission office, Hunter Education, at (407) 840-6100.

Florida Panther put to sleep after health declines

Florida Panther No. 200, nicknamed "Big Guy" since he was brought into captivity in 1984, was euthanized (put to sleep) recently. The 13-year-old cat's health had declined rapidly especially over the past 60 days, according to the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission's wildlife veterinarian, Dr. Michael Dunbar.

"He had reached the point where he was suffering tremendous neurological problems," said Dr. Dunbar. "The animal was blind, unable to stand and was having occasional seizures. He simply was dying of old age."

Tom Logan, head of wildlife research for the commission, said state and federal wildlife officials used certain medical criteria to determine at which point the quality of the animal's life was so poor that it would be inappropriate to keep it alive.

"No 200 had reached that point," he said.

After a highway injury in 1984 the panther had been rescued in a joint effort by the commission, National Park Service, Collier County Sheriff's Department, Florida Highway Patrol, the University of Florida, Naples businessman Ronald Townsend, and Naples veterinarian Dr. Ned Johnston. Early on Nov. 1, a motorist had run over the animal, breaking both rear legs and causing other injuries.

"Tissue damage was too great for the cat to be returned to the wild," Mr. Logan said.

Researchers cared for No. 200 for the past decade at White Oak Plantation, an endangered species breeding facility at Yulee. The plantation is owned by Gilman Paper Company.

The euthanasia took place at the University of Florida, College of Veterinary Medicine.

A standard necropsy was performed to gather biological data about No. 200 and physiological information about panthers in general.

Families sought for exchange students

Every year thousands of American families participate in a culturally-enriching program called the American Intercultural Student Exchange. This non-profit program offers a terrific opportunity for Americans to learn about another culture in a fun-filled, family setting.

AISE is seeking volunteer families to host high school-aged exchange students for the upcoming school year. AISE provides families with complete background information about each student, and allows the families to choose the student whom they would like to host. Students have their own health insurance and spending money, and host families provide students with room and board, and most importantly, insight into typical American life.

If you can help, please call AISE at 1-800-SIBLING.

Summer storms will bring spectacular rainbow displays

By Mike Lyons

The other day I saw a spectacular sight. Just before sunrise I noticed a huge thunderstorm several miles over the ocean. This storm looked like most Florida thunderstorms full of billowing clouds, roaring thunder and dazzling lightning.

What made it unique was the lightning was streaking across the upper one-third of the cloud. It looked as if someone was turning a lamp on and off.

If you've lived in Florida for any period of time you know that Mother Nature can dazzle us in many ways. From our legendary sunrises to unforgettable sunsets, the weather can put on quite a show. Some people think our violent thunderstorms are beautiful especially lighting racing across the sky.

Of all the world's natural phenomena, however, a rainbow has always been my favorite. Ever since I was a kid I have been fascinated with rainbows. Where do they come from and is there really a pot of gold where the rainbow meets the ground?

Throughout history rainbows have been perceived more often with wonder and delight than with fear, perhaps because we see a rainbow shortly after a storm. It gives us a feeling of optimism, a sense that everything is OK.

The legend that you'll find a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow is about 200 years old. It originated in the 19th century book "Teutonic Mythology": Author Jacob Grimm writes: "where the rainbow reaches the earth, there is a gold dish."

Finding that "gold dish" is another matter. Have you ever tried walking toward a rainbow? It can be a very frustrating experience. As you get closer to the rainbow it seems to move away from you because the wind tends to move the rain clouds away.

Even if you do catch up with it the rainbow will disappear. In order to see the rainbow you must be located between the sun and the raindrops. Once you enter the rainbow you can't see the reflected light and the rainbow is gone.

Not everyone has been enamored with rainbows as we have. The Karens of Burma thought rainbows were demon spirits that devoured human spirit. They blamed any accident, particularly drowning, on rainbows.

Some cultures thought a rainbow was a weapon. The people of Siberia, Lapland and Finland believed a rainbow was a bow used by the thunder god to shoot lighting arrows into the sky. Still others thought the rainbow was a bridge from their world to the spirit world.

Aristotle was the first scientist to figure out that rainbows form when raindrops reflect sunlight. In order to see a rainbow you must be standing with the sun at your back and rain must be falling in another part of the sky.

As light enters the raindrop the sun produces a spectrum of colors. The outside rim of the bow begins with reddish tones blending through parallel bands of yellow, green and blue to the inside of the rainbow. Sometimes you'll see a secondary rainbow. Its colors are in reverse order, with blue on the outside rim and red on the inside.

The best time to see a rainbow is immediately after a rain shower passes by and when the sun begins to shine behind the storm. But the easiest way to see a rainbow is to create one yourself.

Grab a garden hose, place your thumb over the end of the nozzle to produce a misty spray and then stand with the sun behind you. You should see a vivid rainbow right in front of you.

Making a rainbow is easy. Finding the pot of gold is tough.

The Belle Glade Lions Club held installation ceremonies at the Binks Forest Country Club in Wellington on June 10. Fifty-six members and guests were present for the event which included dining on a seafood buffet. Steve French, the immediate past president, served as the installing officer. Crash on 'Bloody 27' claims more lives

Tammy Jackson
Staff Reporter

Frequently traveled, U.S. Highway 27 has taken the lives of three in a head-on collision. Also known to many as "Bloody 27", this accident is the second fatal crash since March.

According to Florida Highway Patrol reports, three members of a Bradenton family were killed Sunday, June 19, when their 1991 Pontiac Sunbird crossed the center line of U.S. Highway 27. The Pontiac struck a Dodge Coachman head-on in the accident located 11 miles south of the City of South Bay.

Troopers said The Pontiac was traveling northbound on U.S. Hwy. 27, while the Coachman was traveling southbound. The driver of the Pontiac, Ensel St. Jusma, lost control of the vehicle and crossed into the southbound lane striking the Coachman.

Reports state the Coachman traveled down the west shoulder into a water-filled area in a road construction area. The Coachman came to rest with the front submerged in the water.

Those killed in the accident were Ensel St. Jusma, 30, Lyseul Cesar, 22, and Stanley Cesar, 11 months old.

Cesily Cesar, 4, was taken to Glades General Hospital where she was listed in critical but stable condition. The driver of the Coachman, Clive Russell Sullivan, 46, of Clewiston was transported to Delray Community Hospital via Trauma Hawk where he was listed in very critical condition. His wife Susan, 30, was listed in critical but stable condition at the same hospital.

Residents asked to help remember Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis

Through the years, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis has been a shining example of dignity and courage for all America. The nation will never forget her elegance and spirit in the face of tragedy.

Hollywood's Famous Poets Society joins the country in mourning this great woman.

"Poetry was one of Jacqueline's great loves," says Poetry Director Dr. Richard Huntington, "and beginners and professionals alike, to send a poem inspired by her life, which we will pass on as a collective tribute to the Kennedy family. We want Belle Glade poets to be well represented, as they are among the best poets in the country."

Won't you take a moment to send your poem to: Dr. Richard Huntington, 7095 Hollywood Blvd., Suite 730, Hollywood, Cal. 90028.

A tip for the Fourth of July

It's well known that the framers of the Declaration of Independence were visionaries. Less well known is the fact that many of their ideas fermented in America's colonial taverns. Thomas Jefferson wrote much of the Declaration of Independence in Philadelphia's Indian Queen Tavern; Paul Revere planned the Boston Tea party at his favorite meeting place—the Green Dragon Tavern.

It's no wonder, then, that two centuries later men and women in Belle Glade will celebrate America's independence in much the same way as those who started the holiday did: enjoying a cold beer. And whether celebrating near the water, at the ball park or in the back yard with family and friends, Bernie Little Distributors, Belle Glade's distributor of Anheuser-Busch beers, hopes adults are guided by one of the cornerstones of democracy: With freedom comes responsibility.

So as you toast the architects of independence, remember that drinking and personal responsibility go hand in hand. "Know When To Say When" this Fourth of July.

Sincerely,
Joseph K. Little

War against farmers in South Florida continues

A special report by David A. Russell, president of Citizens for Constitutional Property Rights, Inc.

The war against farmers in Dade, Broward, Palm Beach, Glades and Hendry Counties continues unabated. Environmental extremists have declared that they will not be satisfied until everything south of Lake Okeechobee is "farm free."

Under the guise of protecting and restoring the Everglades, draconian methods are being imposed on a major segment of the population. Publicity in the media, claims of doom and destruction, environmental hype and scary scenarios have made the Everglades Restoration an emotional issue, and when emotion rules, reason and common sense go out the window.

But we need to examine the facts with a clear head. It is an issue too important and too expensive to go off half-cocked as the Corps did in the sixties when they dug the Kissimmee Canal.

To begin with, scientists do not yet really know what has caused some of the changes in the quality of water in the glades. There are lots of theories, but very little verifiable data.

For example, for the several years we have been deluged with stories that the farmers are the cause of high levels of mercury in the water. Yet recently, a news article appeared professing the experts were unable to explain why rain-water falling directly from the sky had exceptionally high levels of mercury. Since the spin-doctors could not blame this on the farmers, it appeared briefly in the media then was forgotten.

Another interesting fact is that biologists working for the Florida Department of Environmental Protection, Corps of Engineers, Water Management District and the Environmental Protection Agency claim that water samples taken of run-off from farms proved that farmers were the culprits and they had to foot the bill for the cleanup. Yet when independent scientists and those hired by the farmers attempted to take water samples from the same sources, they were refused and when they persisted, they were arrested.

This provokes several questions. What do the bureaucrats have to hide? Why were they afraid to allow scientists other than their paid stooges to take samples for testing? Why have they refused to release their so-called "scientific data and findings" to outside sources for evaluation? (The bureaucrats have even ignored a court order to produce this data so farmers could review the results.)

Publicity in the media by sympathetic editorial writers and the big environmental groups, with hundreds of millions of dollars to spend, aided by their people who have infiltrated into the bureaucracies, are bringing enormous pressure to bear upon elected officials. And lawmakers are responding to the pressure and

Ask Dr. Boltson

Dr. David Boltson is the associate director of the Western Palm Beach County Mental Health Clinic in Belle Glade, and is a licensed psychologist in private practice in Lake Worth.

Did you have your O.J. this morning?

Did he do it or didn't he? But wasn't he a great football player, and didn't he always seem like such a friendly guy? Los Angeles prosecutor Gil Garcetti is angering defense lawyers by publicly declaring that he actually believes that the person he has decided to prosecute is truly guilty of the crime. He has broken the sacred rule of the American justice system: if you have fame, money, or power, you can get away with a lot more than the average guy.

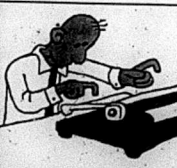

Now I don't know if O.J. actually did it. Most people don't want to believe that their (former?) hero could commit such a terrible crime. I think it's wonderful that we have a great capacity to forgive and see good qualities in each other. I am very concerned however, when people are unable to acknowledge the destructive capacity of humans as well. The only way you can truly respect and care for someone is to see all that they are. Marriages that are premised on only seeing and experiencing "great" moments won't last very long. Every time someone non-ideal behavior is exhibited, the partner expecting only perfection will get more and more frustrated. So why should we all be so surprised that O.J. might have committed a double murder? Because he was a talented superstar football player? Why should one preclude the other? Maybe someone who was used to winning and getting almost everything he wanted, got really mad when his wife told him he couldn't have her.

Mae Wright recently killed his wife in Riviera Beach. Ronald Frederick recently killed his wife in Clewiston. Frederick killed himself, and Wright is awaiting trial. No one is hoping Mr. Wright gets off. We just presume he was a mean-spirited, wife-abusing, nasty murderer. Humans can be kind, loving, creative and sincere. They can also be nasty, malicious, cunning, deceitful, and murderous—even rich and famous people can possess evil character traits. O.J. had apparently beaten his wife several times throughout the marriage. In divorcing him, Nicole Simpson publicly let us know that it did not feel good to be married to O.J. Why is it so hard for everyone to believe that he might have committed a murder? Yes, he was a great football player, and yes he had a great on-screen personality, and yes apparently a lot of people liked him. Unfortunately, he also appears to have been a terrible, terrible husband just like many average folks are.

the doctored data they are being furnished. One result of this pressure is the recent agreement between the state and federal governments on the one hand and the sugar growers on the other. While the jury is still out on whether or not the scientific data collected by the government agents is valid or has been fabricated to justify their actions, that has not prevented them from going after their target.

Because sugar growers have "deep pockets" the government has chosen them as their target.

After all, if they can browbeat and beat these people with their financial resources, would anyone else ever dare stand against them?

There are several reasons why the sugar people were picked. First, and foremost, for years the media has painted them as the "black-hat gang."

Whether or not they deserve the reputation they have been tarred with I don't know, but I do know that it is government practice, working with the liberal media, to pick a victim and then have stories "leaked" to their friends in the press that places the target in a bad light with the public. After a period of time for the media to publicize the story, this then gives the bureaucrats "reasonable cause" to move against their target.

It has happened over and over again in our country and is happening every day to new victims the government has targeted. Invariably it will be a company or industry that employs large numbers of personnel and contributes hundreds of millions of dollars to our economy. The result is often the destruction of the industry, the loss of thousands of jobs, and a major blow to our state or national economy.

Several months ago I advanced the hypothesis that it seemed the environmental extremists who were seeking to take over our country were attempting to "bring America to its economic knees."

Such actions as are being brought against the farm communities of South Florida are further evidence that this is a true objective of the Green Revolution.

During the recent session of the legislature, those who do the bidding of the environmentalists rammed through a bill that spells doom for farmers in South Florida. For example, Sen. Curt Kiser tacked on an amendment that establishes a maximum phosphorous concentration of 10 parts per billion (ppb) for farm runoff water.

To understand why it will be impossible to meet this standard, you need to understand that normal rainfall averages 50-70 ppb, the best water treatment equipment achieves only a 50 ppb level and urban roadway storm drainage is 700 ppb.

The level of phosphorous in Lake Okeechobee fluctuates between 80-120 ppb. Lawmakers and environmentalists know that it will be impossible for farmers to meet this new standard, and there is a sinister purpose to this scam.

When the farmers cannot meet the standard in the law, they will be fined, attacked again, and again, made to spend hundreds of millions of dollars all for nothing. In the end, when the farmers can no longer afford to meet the fines and penalties levied upon them, they will have to move and forfeit their land to the state to pay the fines and penalties. Or they will have to sell to Big Brother for whatever he offers. Either sell or be harassed until they go broke, a bad choice to make.

There is a real tragedy behind this move. You see, this whole scenario is not about protecting the environment, it is about taking control of land, by whatever means the smart minds and slick attorneys can conceive.

This attempt by the Corps of Engineers, the EPA and Water Management District to depopulate the 8-and-a-half square miles of South Dade known as the Frog Pond and Rocky Glades sinks. Using the pretext of "protecting the Glades" the Corps plans to flood 200,000 acres in South Dade. It doesn't matter to them that there are 700 homes in the area. The have publicly stated, "these homes have to go."

Even if the state manages to pay the owners for their property, you can bet it will be only a few cents on the dollar. After all, Big Brother doesn't have to abide by market conditions, he offers what he wants to offer, and you take it or else. That is even if he decides to make an offer to the owner. In many cases government agents won't even offer to pay, they just come up with a new regulation that gives them control of the land without having to compensate the owner. How far have we drifted from the Constitutional protections given us by our forefathers!

Environmentalists have made it clear they do not want any farming done south of Lake Okeechobee, and in spite of what they may say, they will be back again and again until they achieve their goal.

What will it mean to the citizens of Florida, the consumer who gets his groceries at the local supermarket? In the South Dade area and surrounding farm communities, nearly 50 percent of the entire nation's winter supply of fruit and vegetables are grown here.

During January and February almost 75 percent of all domestic tomatoes are produced in the area known as the Frog Pond. When there are no more farms in this area, and we have to import our fruits and vegetables from California, Texas or Mexico, and the prices are two to three times what we now pay, (and quality is inferior due to long distances they have to travel) maybe this will get the attention of the citizens that takes the food on his table for granted. Perhaps then the urban dweller, the condo owner, and the tourist visitor will come to understand that they are paying for their silence and acquiescence to the shady dealing that is taking place at the expense of our farmers. But by then it will be too late. Once we lose productive areas like this and the area is flooded, it will never be reclaimed again.

There are those who claim we must compromise with the environmentalists because they are too rich to fight; because they have too many friends in the bureaucracy and we can't fight city hall; because they have the law on their side (and most of the lawmakers too, it seems) if we oppose them, people will point to us as being anti-environmental and that is politically incorrect today.

It is time we stop caving into these power-hungry land-grabbers. It is time we came out of the closet and stop being afraid. It is time we began to point the finger at where the real problem is, the environmental extremists that want to depopulate the world.

Protecting the Glades does not mean we have to scrap our source of food production, and compromising with these people is certain death. Compromising with these environmentalists is like feeding your friends to the bears in the hope that after he has eaten your neighbor he won't be hungry and let you live.

The problem is that these land grabbers have an insatiable appetite and the more they get, the more power they have, and the more power they have the more they want, until they have all the power and control everything. You must remember that protecting the environment is not their purpose, it is only the cover they use. Land control is the real goal. I would rather fight them today, than five or 10 years from now while there is still some hope of winning.

I am reminded of the following statement made by Winston Churchill, "Still if you will not fight for the right when you can easily win without bloodshed, if you will not fight when your victory will be sure and not so costly, you may come to the moment when you will have to fight with all the odds against you and only a precarious chance for survival. There may be a worse case. You may have to fight when there is no chance of victory, because it is better to perish than to live as slaves."

We are at the stage today when the odds are against property owners, but it is better to fight now while there is still some chance for survival than to wait until there is no chance of victory.

And for those who are willing to sit back and wait because it isn't your fight, I remind you of the Protestant Minister in Germany during the rise of Hitler. He later told this story.

"I did not stand and speak out when they came for the Communists for I was not a Communist. I did not stand and speak when they came for the Trade Unionist, for I was not a Unionist. I did not speak out when they came for the Jews for I wasn't a Jew. Nor did I speak out when they came for the Catholics because I was not a Catholic. When they came for me, there was no one left to stand for me."

There is a lesson here for every freedom-loving man and woman in America. We best heed it before it is too late. It is imperative if we are to preserve private property and freedom (for the two go hand in hand), that we, as a people, take a stand, and do it now before it is too late.

America has already slipped more than 50 percent into a socialist form of government, a form of government that does not permit private ownership of property, a government of omnipotent power where the rights of the individual have become nothing more than a stumbling block to the powerful bureaucracies that control every facet of our lives. The time is long past when we should take a stand. We cannot delay any longer if we are to have any chance of salvaging the Republic given to us by our forefathers.

Frank Garner, editor of Florida Grower and Rancher Magazine in the April 1994 issue stated, "I am convinced that by the year 2000, 85 percent of the land in Florida will be owned by the government."

I fully concur, and they will not be satisfied with that. Sooner or later, government will take charge of everything including our homes and allocate living space based upon some formula or criteria they will dream up. That's the way it was done in Russia, you can expect the same here.

Remember also the bread line and empty shelves in the Soviet Union after the farms became government collectives and were run by the elitists and central planners. Is history about to repeat itself in this country?

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

The Glades area has become a haven for social service agencies, most of whom are providing much needed services. It is, however, alarming to see that most of these agencies open branches in the Glades and bring with them their managers, most of their staff and rarely advertise their jobs in the local papers.

As the Glades residents embark on supporting and diversifying the local economy, the impetus of this concept is based on supporting local businesses and creating local jobs for area residents. It is also based on the realization that irrespective of our origin, race, religion or gender, the survival of the Glades depends on each and every one of us. We may have come from different directions or different vessels, but we are all in the same boat today.

It is therefore imperative that organizations such as the chamber of commerce, be representative of the entire community.

It is with this concept in mind that I urge African American and other minority businesses and organizations to join the chamber of commerce.

By becoming members, you can also have representation on the board of directors which in turn can effect change from within. There may be a lot of changes coming down the economic pipeline, so don't be left out again.

The Glades area branch of the NAAOP is urging existing and future agencies and organizations that plan to do business in the Glades to:

- Advertise jobs in the local press
- Directly hire or train and hire local residents
- Spend some of your money in the Glades
- Contribute to worthy organizations and causes
- Consider moving to this lakeside community

Thanks,

Larry S. Konchellah
President Glades Area NAAOP

VA counselors answer questions

Question: I used my VA-guaranteed home loan benefit years ago. Can I renew my eligibility and purchase another home?

Answer: Your entitlement to a VA-guaranteed home loan can be restored if you have sold the home you previously bought, and the VA loan has been paid in full. Your eligibility also can be restored if you have sold your home to a qualified veteran buyer who substituted his or her entitlement for yours. The purchaser must have substituted the same amount of entitlement as you used to buy the house.

Question: Can a nonveteran acquire a home that has been acquired by VA after foreclosure of a VA-guaranteed loan?

Answer: Yes. These homes are available for resale of both veterans and nonveterans.

Question: Does VA home loan entitlement provide cash to the veteran?

Answer: No. The amount of entitlement relates to the amount VA will guarantee the lender against loss. The one exception is that Native American veterans are now entitled to a direct home loan for up to $80,000 to purchase, construct, or improve dwellings located on trust lands.

Question: What happens if I fail to make payments on my home loan guaranteed by the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA)?

Answer: Failure to make payments on the loan may lead to foreclosure and the loss of your home. If you find yourself in financial difficulty, please contact your loan holder to discuss the problem and make arrangements to bring your loan current. If additional assistance is needed or advice is required, you should contact the VA. You can reach the VA Regional Office nearest you by calling 1-800-827-1000.

Question: I receive a non-service-connected pension from VA. Does this make me eligible for a grant for a specially adapted home?

Answer: No. This program is available for veterans with a permanent and total service-connected disability. For additional information about this program, contact the nearest VA Regional Office.

Question: Can I use my VA-guaranteed home loan to buy land I plan to build a house on in the future?

Answer: A VA-guaranteed loan cannot be used to buy undeveloped land unless it is part of a package that includes the building of your home.

VA awards fellowship programs in women veterans health

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) is announcing the establishment of fellowship programs in health issues of women veterans of six VA Medical Centers in Boston, North Carolina, Pittsburgh, Portland, Oregon, San Francisco and Sepulveda/West Los Angeles.

In announcing the program, VA Secretary Jesse Brown said, Women veterans have served this country with honor and distinction. This new fellowship program will enhance VA's ability to better serve them by providing specific training and research opportunities to physicians who wish to make veterans health care a specialty."

The two-year program is designed to prepare physicians for academic careers in health issues of women veterans. Post-residency training will be provided to physicians from internal medicine and its subspecialties, family practice, gynecology, psychiatry or surgery. Each participant will devote up to 75 percent of the fellowship time to teaching and research, with the remaining 25 percent in the delivery of patient care. Participants will be expected to complete a research project and to become proficient in the coordination of services to women veterans.

The six VA Medical Centers awarded the fellowship program during the first competitive cycle were selected from a field of 16 applicants. Each award was based on the medical center's ability to provide the needed population of women veterans, the strength of their academic program, ability and expertise in research mentoring and commitment to become leaders in the area of health issues of women veterans.

GFC offers free hunter safety education course

The Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission is offering free hunter education courses for anyone interested in wildlife conservation, hunting or the outdoors.

The 16-hour course provides training in safe gun handling techniques, firearm and ammunition nomenclature, gun and hunting laws, wildlife identification and management, wilderness survival and first aid. In addition, instructors teach the basics of hunting with archery and hunting ethics and responsibility. Students also attend a range session and shoot a rifle, shotgun and bow.

"Anyone born on or after June 1, 1975 with plans to hunt in Florida must have passed an approved hunter safety course prior to going afield," Capt. Ed Tyer, the commission's hunter education supervisor, said. "The course is required of all hunters who take wild animal life in Florida with the use of firearms, muzzleloaders, bows or crossbows."

Satisfactory completion of Florida's program meets the requirements of all other states and Canadian provinces where this type of training is required," Capt. Tyer said.

Persons not allowed to possess a hunting license born after June 1, 1975 must have a hunter safety card with them while hunting. License exemptions apply to persons hunting in their county of residence on the homestead or the homestead of their spouse or minor child, any minor child hunting on the homestead of his parents, persons possessing exemption certificates, and certain other individuals.

A separate bowhunting course is offered for those wishing to learn how to hunt with bow and arrow. For information on the next course in your area, contact the nearest commission office.
